

A partner in global health

As the donor to UNFPA's Supplies Partnership programme, the Netherlands helps save the lives of thousands of mothers and newborns. This support provides critical maternal health supplies and medicines in many of the world's lowest income countries. The investment is also propelling a shift towards sustainable domestic financing for reproductive health commodities. By expanding access to family planning, women and girls are better equipped to participate fully in economic life, claim their rights and shape their own futures.

UNFPA and the Netherlands

About UNFPA

UNFPA, the United Nations Population Fund, is the sexual and reproductive health agency of the UN. It works to uphold the rights and choices of women, girls and young people across more than 150 countries. UNFPA aims to ensure that every pregnancy is wanted, every childbirth is safe, and every young person can fulfil their potential. It also helps governments plan for changing demographics, to build inclusive and resilient societies.

All UNFPA funding is voluntary – we rely on governments and other partners to support our programmes.

Our partnership

A dedicated provider of core support

Flexible core funding allows UNFPA to plan strategically and uphold its global normative mandate as a champion of sexual and reproductive health and rights. These unearmarked resources make it possible to deliver sustainable impact that promotes, protects and advances human rights worldwide, leaving no one behind. As a leading core donor, the Netherlands empowers UNFPA to ensure that every pregnancy is wanted, every childbirth is safe, and every young person can fulfil their potential.

An ally to end child marriage

In partnership with the Netherlands, efforts to end child marriage are advancing across communities most at risk. By promoting girls' education, strengthening protection systems and addressing harmful social norms, these initiatives help ensure that girls can grow up healthy, stay in school and make informed choices about their futures.
